

Here is Scout Spillsbury's Story of Carrizal Battle

EL PASO, Texas, June 30.—(Lam Spillsbury, Mormon scout, was asked by a newspaper man who, in his opinion, was responsible for the Carrizal fight.

"I am hardly prepared to answer that question," he said. "If Capt. Boyd had orders to go through Carrizal to Villa Ahumada, he demonstrated that he was a very brave man and that he would make every effort to carry out his orders. If he did not have orders to go through to Villa Ahumada, he behaved very foolishly."

Three hours later, when Spillsbury had crossed to the American side of the international bridge he was asked:

"Do you know the contents of the statement Gen. Trevino issued regarding your claim that the Carrizal fight resulted from Capt. Boyd's action?"

"I do," he answered.

"Do you still stick to that statement?"

"I certainly do."

"Were you coerced into making it?"

"I was not."

"You will not change your story now that you are safe on American soil?"

"No, I certainly will not. But I refuse to answer any more questions."

Not Sure About First Shot.

Spillsbury said that immediately on his arrival in Chihuahua City the commander of the Mexican army corps of the north sent for him and asked him to outline the Carrizal encounter as he saw it, which he did. He said he was unable to say who fired the first shot, and added that the American command estimated there numbered 76 men, 10 of the original 80 comprising the detachment having been sent back from Santa Maria.

"We had been on a scouting expedition for several days when Capt. Charles T. Boyd, commanding the troops, told me that we were bound for Villa Ahumada to investigate reports that bandits were in that vicinity and to locate a deserter," he said. "We arrived outside Carrizal a week ago last Wednesday and Capt. Boyd sent a messenger in to Gen. Felix Gomez, commanding the Carranza troops there, asking permission to pass through the town toward Ahumada on a peaceful mission.

Gets Interview With Gomez.

"Gen. Gomez replied by sending Lieut. Col. Hinsa out to confer with Capt. Boyd. A parley, at which I was interpreter, was held in the center of the field. The Mexican officer told Capt. Boyd that his orders were that Americans could not advance south, east or west. Capt. Boyd then asked for a personal interview with Gen. Gomez. This was granted.

"Gen. Gomez reiterated the information given by his subordinate and returned to his lines. A few minutes later, almost simultaneously, both commands formed in lines of skirmish. Then a detachment of Carranza troops ran around our left flank, apparently to surround us. We found ourselves in the center of a line of Mexicans stretching in a horseshoe-like curve about us. Then the firing began.

Pour Hall of Bullets.

"I don't know who began it, but from the center of the horseshoe a Mexican machine gun poured a hail of bullets at us, while from the point of the curve on our left flank another way firing at us."

"Don't fire until you are fired upon, boys," I heard Capt. Boyd shout as he gave the order to advance over my earnest protest," the scout added.

Spillsbury Surrounded.

Spillsbury said he was surrounded by a band of Mexicans, who forced him to surrender and threatened to shoot him immediately.

"They said I had fired the shots that killed their leader and they called me the 'Tejano' and seemed to believe that I was a Texas Mexican and consequently in their opinion a traitor to Mexico. Until, with the other prisoners, my arms were bound and I was put in a stock car bound for Chihuahua City. I believed that I was to be executed. The soldiers also believed they were to be killed, but I assured them they were not, and as we got farther into the interior our confidence began to come back. But again at Chihuahua City I was told that the governor of the state had ordered my execution and not until I had talked with Gen. Trevino was I relieved of the impression."

Today is Final Day to Cast Votes for Most Popular Girl

Today is the final day for balloting in the school girl popularity contest. By tomorrow it will be known just which 18 girls out of the following long list will represent their respective schools on the Goddess of Liberty float in the Fourth of July parade. Thousands of votes have been cast and the girls who win a place on the float may well be proud of the position.

Hold Switzerland Is German Ally

International News Service.

BERNE, June 30.—The relations between Switzerland and Italy have become decidedly strained as a result of the war. Although the attitude of the two governments is strictly correct and no serious difficulties are to be feared there is much bitter feeling. The Italian press attacks Switzerland as a secret German ally. Public opinion in Italy is inflamed. Swiss citizens are hooted, and threatened with violence in Italian towns. The Swiss government has advised Swiss merchants and others not to visit Italy unless absolutely necessary.
